Re: Special Utility Districts Training February 5, 2026

During the Development Review process City Staff have received inquiries about the availability of special utility districts (SUDs) within the City of Brenham. At this time, no SUDs exist within either the City of Brenham or Washington County. Special utility districts such as public improvement districts (PIDs) and municipal utility districts (MUDs) are increasingly common as financing mechanisms for development. These districts are regulated by the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ) and the Texas Water Code, and they may be used to finance public improvements such as water, sewer, drainage, streets, and parks.

To prepare for future inquiries from the development community, the City requested Hawes Hill & Associates, LLP, a consulting firm with experience in creating development financing tools, including SUDs, to provide training on this topic. Representatives Naina Magon and David Hawes will present information on the following subjects:

- Types of special districts
- Why developers use special districts
- Benefits and disadvantages
- Considerations before creating a district
- Governance of special districts
- Role of the developer
- Role of the City
